Unit 1: The Art of Narrative Texts

A narrative text is an imaginative or factual story that entertains and informs readers. The generic structure of a narrative text comprises: Orientation, Complication, Resolution, and optional Re-orientation. Orientation introduces the characters, setting, and background of the story. Complication introduces conflicts or problems faced by the protagonists. Resolution shows how the characters solve the crisis.

Language Features of Narrative Texts

Narrative texts predominantly employ the Past Tense, action verbs, temporal connectives (once upon a time, suddenly, then), and direct speech. Students must recognize past forms of irregular and regular verbs to express events sequentially.

Unit 2: Grammar Focus - Simple Past vs Present Perfect

Understanding the temporal distinction between Simple Past and Present Perfect is crucial for Grade X students. Simple Past is utilized for events that started and finished at a definite time in the past (e.g., 'The team completed the coding project yesterday'). In contrast, Present Perfect describes actions that occurred at an indefinite time, or past events that have present relevance (e.g., 'We have studied three programming paradigms so far'). Key time signals for Simple Past include 'yesterday', 'last week', and 'ago', while Present Perfect utilizes 'already', 'yet', 'since', and 'for'.

Unit 3: Functional Texts - School Announcements

School announcements convey critical operational information. An effective announcement text must specify the purpose, target audience, day and date, exact time, venue or location, and the contact person. Omission of venue or schedule causes informational ambiguity.
